RECOGNITION OF GLENDALE'S HISTORIC DISTRICT EXPANDS

GLENDALE, Ariz. – The Catlin Court Historic District has been approved by the National Register on October 20, 2007 to expand from seven to twenty-two blocks, adding 134 additional contributing properties to the National Register of Historic Places.

The National Register has existed since 1966 and has worked closely with public and private efforts to support, protect and coordinate those areas that are seen worthy of preservation. The city of Glendale now has 290 contributing properties listed on the National Register.

The boundaries of the expanded Catlin Court Historic District are Orangewood Avenue, 55th Avenue, Palmaire Avenue and 59th Avenue. One block bounded by 55th Drive, Glenn Drive, 56th Avenue and Palmaire Avenue and the two lots at the south east corner of 55th Drive and Palmaire Avenue have also been added to the expanded historic district.
